Volume XLIX—Number 26

BETHEL, MAINE, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1943

Single Copy—FIVE CENTS

STATE'S QUOTA MORE CARS, TIRES & TUBES

The July quota of Class 1 passenger car tires for Maine totals 7,771, which is 1,631 more tires than were allotted to Maine for the month of June. Fewer Grade 3 tires will be available for July with the quota set at 2,136, as compared with 2,419 for June.

Maine's quota for passenger car tubes for July will be 4,962, an increase of 773 over the June figure. The truck tire quota for July is 2,664, the truck tube quota, 2,405, and the tractor tire quota 434, all slight increases over the June figures.

Maine's allotment of automobiles for rationing during the month of July is 263, an increase of 22 cars over the June quota. A reserve quota of 34 cars has also been listed. The quotas for Maine counties for July are as follows: Androscoggin, 19; Aroostook, 28; Cumberland, 55; Franklin, 10; Hancock, 9; Kennebec, 23; Knox, 8; Lincoln, 13; Oxford, 7; Penobscot, 7; Sagadahoc, 14; Somerset, 11; Waldo, 7; Washington, 6; and York, 24.

FARMERS TO RECEIVE TT GAS RATION BOOKS BY MAIL

Farmers will receive their gas ration books for the third quarter direct from the local rationing boards by mail and it will not be necessary for farmers to go to the ration board to obtain their third period stamp. ODT has sent the rationing board a copy of each farmer's certificate of war necessity and the rationing boards are mailing the stamps out at the present time.

Farmers do not have to go until the 25th of July before receiving their third period stamp, but will receive TT stamps, which are valid from July 1 to Sept. 30.

BETHEL OBSERVATION POST NAMED

There was an attendance of nearly 100 at the meeting of aircraft observers which was held at Hanson Hall last Thursday evening. Elwood Ireland, chief observer, conducted a business meeting at which Miss Constance Philbrick was elected secretary and F. Edward Hanson assistant chief observer. It was voted to name the post the Stanley Allen Post and to hold a dedication ceremony July 4. Mrs. W. J. Upson presented a new flag to be used at the post and speakers were made to erect a pole. A speaker from the Portland filter area was present, and the motion picture, "The Battle of England" was shown.

PARKER—SMITH

Miss Josephine Barbara Smith and Cecil Earl Parker were married at Bethel Inn, home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry Boyker, on June 20 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. M. A. Gordon officiated.

Miss Hazel Grover sang "I Love You Truly," preceding the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Miss Arlene Greenleaf as the bride and attendants came down the stairway to join the groom in front of the fireplace in the living room where the ceremony was performed.

The bride wore blue with finger-ty veil. Her flowers were pink roses. Miss Abigail Gill, bridesmaid, wore pink net and carried yellow carnations. The groom was attended by his brother Wesley Parker of Livermore, Gail Ann Parker of Livermore and Richard Parker, ring bearer, completed the wedding party.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Mrs. Chester Chapman, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. The decorations were blue, pink and white.

Mrs. Parker is the daughter of Mrs. Edna Smith of Bethel and is a graduate of Gould Academy in the class of 1939.

Mr. Parker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker of North Livermore and graduated from Leavitt Institute in 1940. He is employed by Richard Davis. They will make their home in Bethel.

NEW FIRE WHISTLE TO BE TESTED MONDAY

The first tests of the new fire whistle were made Monday evening, and will be continued on next Monday, July 5. The system of compressed air tanks and other apparatus has been adapted and constructed by members of the fire company to meet the need of a new warning signal to replace the old siren. In the first test the signal was heard for several miles and it is believed that a satisfactory signal will be developed.

CLARE TYLER OF E. BETHEL WINS DRESS REVUE CONTEST

Clare Tyler, a member of the Lucky Clover 4-H Club in East Bethel, was selected county winner at the annual Oxford County 4-H club style dress revue. She has been an outstanding club member for five years and takes an active part in all club activities. In 1941, she was a blue ribbon winner in sewing. Later in the year she will model her dress at the state style dress revue. The state winner will receive an award and educational trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in November.

14 COUNTIES EXCEED BOND QUOTAS — STATE PURCHASES OVER $4,000,000 MONTHLY

"For the second month in a row Maine's Series E War Bond purchases exceeded $4,000,000," said Alton E. Littlefield, State Chairman of the Maine War Savings Staff, in announcing total May sales of $4,192, or better than a 92% increase over sales in May, 1942. "In this connection," said Mr. Littlefield, "Aroostook, Sagadahoc, Waldo, Cumberland and Penobscot Counties accounted for sales well over 100% of their last year's May performance, while twelve counties (a new record) exceeded their current May quotas by substantial amounts."

"If our voluntary savings are to keep pace with the steadily mounting cost of the war, we must increase both the number of individuals under Payroll Savings and wherever possible the size of their allotments. To obtain this goal a special drive will be launched within the next few weeks and will extend throughout the summer."

Percentages of May sales to state and county quotas are as follows: State—110.33; Androscoggin—97.67; Aroostook—172.60; Cumberland—88.99; Franklin—131.72; Hancock—134.84; Kennebec—111.17; Knox—164.09; Lincoln—86.35; Oxford—125.34; Penobscot—139.37; Piscataquis—136.51; Sagadahoc—74.41; Somerset—105.18; Waldo—124.63; Washington—139.2; York—135.

PURPLE—BARNETT

About 65 were present to witness a pretty wedding at the Upton Congregational Church on Sunday, June 27, at 1:30 p. m., when Miss Etta Barnett of Upton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett, was united in marriage to George Purple of Claremont, N. H. The bride was given away by her father, Miss Viola Barnett, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Malcolm Barnett, a cousin, was best man. The bride wore a gown of white satin with a long bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath. The bridesmaid wore pink taffeta and carried a bouquet of pink roses, pink carnations and baby's breath.

The double ring service was used and the ceremony performed by Rev. N. L. Scruton of Upton. Mrs. Scruton played "I Love You Truly." The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful bracelet and to the bride a tie set. The bride's gift to the groom was a black leather fitted traveling bag. The bridesmaid carried a compact, and the ring bearer carried a ring. The bride's mother was a corsage of pink carnations and pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the ladies' building. They received many pretty gifts and money. After a lovely wedding trip the couple will be in Claremont, N. H. where Mr. Purple will be employed in defense work.

WHAT TO WRITE SOLDIERS

"The soldier wants the intimate details of life back home," says Chaplain (Major) Alvie L. Knight of Cleveland, Mississippi, who has just returned to the U. S. after five months of duty on Guadalcanal. "The girl two doors down has taken a war plant job, or that the couple across the street have had a baby may make your letter read like a personal column in a small-town weekly newspaper, but that's what he wants. By all means, don't tell the soldier about your troubles. He has enough of his own. Domestic troubles affect morale of the soldier at the front more than anything else. Something to live for and go back to is what keeps a soldier going. It is what gives a man fight. Home life is everything to the man at the front."

BUSH—LYON

On Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock the Congregational Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Catherine Lyon became the bride of Dr. Richard Bush of Boston. The impressive double ring service was performed by Dr. Herbert T. Wallave, pastor of the church.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Harry Lyon an aunt of the bride and "O Promise Me" was sung by Mrs. Margaret Carter Bean, a cousin of the bride.

The bride entered the church in the arm of her father, Edward Lyon. Her sister, Miss Barbara Lyon, as maid of honor, was her only attendant. Dr. Bush was attended by Ensign Frederick Broad of Boston as best man, and Dr. Walter Kerr and Dr. Terry Lilly of Boston acted as ushers.

The bride's gown was of satin and net. She wore a finger-ty veil and carried a white prayer book with flowered streamers. The maid of honor's gown was of yellow organza, and she carried a column bouquet.

The church was beautifully decorated with white and pink pom-poms.

A small reception was held at "Green Trees," the home of Miss Grace Carter and Miss Catherine Section for the immediate families. The gifts and guest book were in charge of Miss Marguerite Davis of Boston. The bride and groom left on a shower of rice, confetti and good wishes. After a short honeymoon they will reside in Boston.

Those from out of town attending the wedding were: Dr. and Mrs. Vanvor Bush, father and mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bush, brother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Mead and Mrs. Ralph Mead, sisters of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Davis of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Davis of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Davis of Boston.

After the wedding ceremony at the church, the bride and groom went to the home of the bride's father, Dr. Richard Bush, where they will reside.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A Non-Partisan Editorial Review of the Events of Each Week, Illustrated

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union news analysts, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

MEDITERRANEAN:
Balkan Powder Keg?

The summary closing and opening of the Turko-Syrian frontier within a 48-hour span by the Allied command had presaged new and important military moves, as the Mediterranean area from Italy to the Balkans had tensed for oncoming action.

Increasing evidence that the Axis' much-vaunted Balkan bastion might be a powder keg instead came in the form of reports from Ankara that Rumania had sounded out the Allies on armistice terms. From Ankara, too, came steadily mounting proof of Turkey's closer friendship with the United Nations. The appointment of Brig. Gen. Richard G. Tindell as American military attaché in Ankara and the dispatch of a contingent of Turkish fliers to America for special training were significant steps in this direction.

Reports from Axis sources had reflected increasing official bafflement over the Allies' next moves. After telling its listeners of "many landing craft concentrating from African coasts toward Pantelleria and the manning of a million troops for an Italian invasion," the Rome radio had broadcast a report that "large British forces were concentrating along the southern frontier of Turkey."

Observers for months had known that large numbers of Allied troops had been training in Syria. Lying in the eastern corner of the Mediterranean, Syria offered an effective base for operations against Crete, the Italian-held Dodecanese islands, Greece proper or other Axis points in the Balkans.

BUREAUCRATS:
Congress Compliments

The much-criticized home front government bureaucracy was given a friendly pat on the back and a virtual clean bill of health when the house appropriations committee approved appropriations of $2,039,441,504 for 18 civilian war agencies, including the Office of Price Administration and the Office of War Information.

In making public its highly complimentary report on the work of these agencies, the committee admitted that mistakes had been made and will be made, but denounced those who criticized "without knowledge of the tremendous burdens thrown on agency heads and of the great strides made in putting the United States on a war footing."

"The type of criticism that serves only to create public distrust in the operation is not helpful to the war effort," the committee's report said.

OIL PACT:

Navy Cancels Deal

The tempest over the navy department's contract with the Standard Oil Company of California for operation of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve subsided when Secretary Frank Knox announced cancellation of the agreement.

The decision to cancel followed a legal ruling by the department of justice that the proposed arrangement exceeded the authority granted by law, a navy announcement said. Norman H. Little, assistant attorney general, testifying before the house public lands committee, said that a department report sent to the White House had concluded that the navy's agreement with the oil company was "illegal and invalid."

Colonel Knox declared that his own investigation of the agreement established that "no improprieties had been employed by either party to the negotiations."

TELEFACT

NATIONAL INCOME AND WAR

PACIFIC:

13-to-1 Record

With all indications pointing toward major sea and land engagements looming in the Pacific, air activities still held the center of the war stage in this theater.

Most dramatic of all engagements was that fought out over the Solomons when American planes shot down 77 Jap aircraft over Guadalcanal while losing only six of their own. This 13-to-1 score turned in by American combat fliers in the Solomons who have heretofore included army, navy and marine pilots was regarded as the best ever recorded in a single air action anywhere.

But Allied planes were not idle elsewhere. Liberators bombed made their second heaviest raid of the war on Jap-held Kendari, on Celebes island, 850 miles northwest of Darwin, Australia, damaging airdromes and destroying planes parked on the ground.

In China, a military spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek charged that the Japanese again were employing poison gas in their operations in Suiyuan province. Meanwhile Chiang's forces claimed new successes, including the recapture of strategic towns south of the Yangtze river.

CORN:

'42 Loans Called

First steps in a program to solve the increasingly serious corn supply situation came when the government formally called loans on 47,000 bushels of 1942 crop corn effective July 15. The government had previously used deliveries of grain through liquidation of 1938-41 loans to restore the operations of two closed-down processing plants.

The corn loan move was described as "only an immediate palliative, not the final answer to the problem," and it was stated that efforts to find a solution would continue.

The government's action came as the War Food administration and Commodity Credit corporation received a request from the Corn Industries Research foundation for either complete lifting of federal price ceilings on grain or the imposition of ceilings on hogs. Meanwhile J. B. Hutson, director of the Commodity Credit corporation, said that 25 million bushels of privately owned corn in grain elevators would be seized for plants manufacturing by-products for war uses, unless "crops can be moved off farms."

RUSSIA:

Orel to Forefront

A stepping-up of land activities was reported on the Russian front, with especially heavy fighting reported in the Orel sector. Here, Russian troops defending a strategic newly won bridgehead were reported to have beaten off eight German counterattacks.

It was reported that strong formations of Soviet planes had broken up German formations supporting Nazi tank and infantry units. The Germans, however, were reported bringing ing reinforcements in an effort to forestall the possibility of Russian flanking movements against Orel, strategic Nazi-held base midway between Moscow and Kharkov. Heaviest fighting was reported in the vicinity of Mtsensk, 30 miles northeast of Orel.

Russian air forces continued their efforts to disrupt Nazi supply concentrations by striking at four railroad junctions over which German supplies and reinforcements must move for the Bryansk-Orel-Smolensk area. The junctions were Roslavl, Unecha, Vladislavovka and Novozybkov.

RUSS-POLES:

Pestuar Assurances

Assurances of Soviet aid in restoring a strong and independent Poland after the war were given by Premier Josef Stalin of Russia.

Stalin's promise was contained in a message sent to the first Congress of Polish patriots in Russia who told him that "we will not allow persons who strive to drive a wedge between the Polish people and the Soviet union to trouble the water."

Observers noted that the Polish government-in-exile had no part in the exchange of amenities between the two peoples. Russia recently broke off diplomatic relations with General Sikorski's group in London, because of charges by the Poles of Russ executions of Polish army officers and counter-charges by the Soviets of pro-Axis espionage by the Poles.

EUROPE:

Air Blitz Continues

Even as English King George V was inspecting the Allied armed forces in North Africa, air forces of the United Nations were preparing for the war's next decisive move by softening-up forays against Axis positions from western Europe to the Eastern Mediterranean.

In a single six-day offensive, British and American bombers hammered destruction on nine different major German cities. These included Cologne, Dusseldorf, Munster, Wilhelmshaven, Cuxhaven, Bremen, Bochum, Kiel and Oberhausen. Heaviest assault was reserved for Cologne, industrial capital of the Rhineland and the third largest city in the Reich.

In the Mediterranean, American and British bomber fleets swarmed over Sicily, attacking five major Italian air bases and maintaining a day-and-night "harassment of disaster" to the Axis. The Allied fliers attacking Sicily reported tough fighter opposition and strong anti-aircraft fire, contrasting sharply with the lack of Axis opposition over Pantelleria.

TAXES:

50 Billion Goal

Secretary Henry Morgenthau disclosed that the treasury would trim its request to congress for more new taxes down to $12,000,000,000 instead of the $16,000,000,000 originally planned. Nevertheless, this would be enough to raise the public's overall tax bill during the 1944 fiscal year to $50,000,000,000.

Declaring that the Treasury's goal was to pay half the annual war costs "as we go," Mr. Morgenthau estimated that this goal is $4,000,000,000 less than President Roosevelt's January budget objective.

Treasury recommendations for raising the additional revenues were already slated for submission to congress before its proposed summer recess.

WAR GOODS:

Allies Double Axis

How United Nations' war production is forging fast ahead of the Axis was told by WPB Chairman Donald Nelson.

The United Nations, he informed a house appropriations committee, are now producing $125,000,000,000 worth of arms and war supplies a year—almost double the Axis rate of $65,000,000,000. He said that American military production will reach a peak rate of $30,000,000,000 a year in 1944, with a like amount of non-war goods. He added that this level will be held until the Axis is crushed.

Coupled with other Allied production, Chairman Nelson said, "that ought to be sufficient to swamp the Axis."

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

SHIRTS: New York laundries indicated that the dirty shirt may become fashionable there when they announced they would not accept more than 5 shirts per family a week.

BATTLE COST: The conquest of Pantelleria cost the United Nations only 40 airmen, Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, chief of the U. S. air staff, reported.

PAY LOAD: Britain's latest version of the four-engined Halifax bomber carries added fire power, a maximum load of 5½ tons of bombs and has been improved in all-around performance, the British ministry of aircraft production disclosed.

TRANS-OCEAN: Munitions Minister C. D. Howe announced that a Canadian transatlantic air service will soon be started, carrying mail and official passengers overseas.

PILFERING: Thefts of United States government property, measured by convictions and recoveries have approximately doubled in the last 11 months over the similar period the year before, the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed.

AMITY: Argentina desires to draw close to "the great republic of the United States" in every way possible, Gen. Edelmiro J. Farrell, war minister, declared.

TOKENS: A pocketful of tokens instead of a bookful of food stamps is the latest proposal brought forward by the Office of Price Administration. Still in the tentative state the plan calls for tokens in several colors and denominations designed to fit standardized counting machines so they could be easily tallied at the end of a day.

DAMAGE: The 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau, damaged while escaping from Brest, France, in 1942, was so crippled that her chances of putting out to sea are remote for the remainder of the war, the London Daily Mail reported.

RATIONING:

Eight New Plans

Louis J. Kroeger, OPA rationing official, disclosed that eight new rationing programs are being prepared by the Office of Price Administration and may be instituted within the next year.

Mr. Kroeger told a house appropriations committee that two of the ration plans will be placed in force immediately, but that six others, including coal rationing, are contingent on directives from other government agencies. The two programs definitely scheduled cover cooking and heating stoves, and a new system of allotting foods to all types of institutional users, including hotels and restaurants, which will not affect consumers directly.

Except for coal, the other prospective rationed items were not listed, but Kroeger said they included goods for which the government officials see a definite possibility of shortages in the next fiscal year. Eggs, milk and other foods have been mentioned recently by government food experts as possible candidates for rationing.

PAYROLLERS:

300,000 Cut Urged

Charging that the government payroll has more than tripled since the First World war and that the government could get along with 300,000 fewer employees, a joint congressional committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures recommended that the Civil Service commission act to eliminate unnecessary personnel.

"Wasteful personnel practices," a committee report said, should be prevented by a complete reorganization of personnel servicing and management functioning.

The beneficial effects of a merit system during the past two years, the committee charged, "have been impaired and federal funds have been wasted through the negligent attitude of personnel officers and operation officials."

BOOTLEGGING:

Wages This Time

"Wage bootlegging" by employers was charged by William H. Davis, chairman of the War Labor board, who declared that many industrialists are evading President Roosevelt's order prohibiting wage increases over September 15 levels except with WLB approval.

"Many an employer is bidding for labor in a short market," Davis declared in testimony before a congressional committee urging enforcement measures, "and wants to make increases which are not consistent with the national policy. And he is under a great temptation to say: 'to hell with the law and the WLB and the government, I have got to run my business and I'm going to pay these fellows some extra wages.'"

TOJO:

Dual Warning

In his dual roles of premier and war minister, hard-bitten Hideki Tojo frankly told the Japanese people that all signs pointed toward an all-out Allied offensive in the Pacific where, he admitted, the Japs had been forced back to defensive positions.

In an address to the Japanese diet as premier, Tojo warned that the war situation was "increasingly tense" and that the United States and Britain were displaying signs of a new offensive.

Later, speaking as war minister, Tojo acknowledged the loss of Attu Island, but asserted that Japan had established an unbreakable line from the Aleutians to the South Sea Islands.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Squadron 3. They are: Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox, Jr. Lieut. Kelly has told how he was sent to the tunnel hospital on Corregidor, where he met a nurse named Peggy. Survivors from the sinking of a shipload of refugees were brought to the hospital, and patients from Manila were moved there. From them he learned how badly the war was going for us. A member of the tank corps is speaking.

CHAPTER IV

Continuing the story told him by a member of a tank crew which had been trapped by the Japs on a jungle trail, Lieutenant Kelly asked the lad:

"What happened to your tank?"

"We were lying on our side in that paddy, and the Japs would come over and look at us. We played possum in there all day. They tried to open our door with bayonets, but we had it locked. In the afternoon a Jap officer looked at us through the slots—all of us lying still, holding breath, and then he said, in English, 'They're all dead.'"

"But we figured it was a trick—kept right on playing possum and, sure enough, in about an hour they came back for another look. But we were lying in exactly the same positions. This time they gave a few disgusted grunts and walked off. About an hour after dark we listened carefully, and then unlocked our door. Sure enough, they'd gone, so we beat it for the road."

"Tell me what became of your shoes," I asked him. I couldn't figure how an experienced soldier would ever let himself get separated from his shoes. The kid grinned sheepishly. "I guess that was a damn-fool trick," he said. "You see it had been hotter than hell in that tank, and we were all dirty and tired and sweaty, so we decided to take a bath in a creek just across the rice paddy. But we had to go through our clothes to get there, so keeping our clothes on until we got to the water hole, we took off our shoes and hid them in the tall grass. But when we got back we hunted for several hours, and we couldn't find that barefooted. Finally we started on, barefooted."

"But where were the Japs?"

"They'd gone on ahead toward Manila. The next night we were resting by the roadside. We heard a noise behind us, so we scooted low in the bushes by the side of the road, and saw more of them go by on bicycles—all headed toward Manila. It seemed to be a Jap reconnaissance patrol, because behind them came trucks and guns and infantry, going by in the dark—so close we could have reached out and touched them. If we'd had a machine gun, we could have wiped out several hundred, but we only had our 45's. They kept up most of that night—one group stopped and ate chow on the road bank opposite us; we were scared stiff they'd come over and find us. It was hard for the wounded to be quiet. Our tank driver had a rivet stuck in his throat—every time he took a drink, the water would come leaking out—and the radio operator's arm was full of shrapnel from an exploding bullet. The rest of us were okay, but our feet were getting damned sore."

"At dawn we stopped by a native village to collect some shoes, but their feet were all too small."

"How'd they treat you?"

"Fine—gave us all the food we could eat, but you could see they didn't want us around. Afraid the Japs would find us hiding there and shoot them too. You couldn't blame the natives. So we got out, and spent the other six days of the trip sleeping in ditches or brush-clumps, walking nights."

"Were the wounded weak?"

"Sure, and so were we. The tank driver with the hole in his throat wanted to stop—said for us to leave him behind. We were afraid the Japs would get him and we couldn't spare him a gun—we had only three 45's for the six of us."

"What did you do, carry him?"

"Hell, no. We gave him a 45, told him he'd better use it now if he wasn't coming with us. So he changed his mind, and decided to come on. He made it, too. But it took plenty of guts."

"None of them lacked that," Here Kelly shook his head. "Sometimes training, often equipment, but never guts—and that went for the air force too. Up to then everybody had been cussing out the air corps for letting us down. But after I talked to those pilots I knew they hadn't. They'd done the best job they could with the experience and equipment and leadership they had. Yet how slow everybody learns in a war. Nobody knows anything about a war until it begins. Just two years before, the Polish air force had been blown to hell on the ground. The French caught on the following Spring. In spite of that, the same thing happened to our planes at Pearl Harbor. And yet two days later, in spite of all of it, the Japs catch our air corps on Luzon with its pants down. Only that wasn't the end. Months later, on my way out through Australia, I passed a big American field, and there they are, bombers and fighters parked in orderly rows, wing tip to wing tip. 'Hell,' they told me, 'the Japs are hundreds of miles away.' Except that's where they're always supposed to be when they catch you with your pants down, and I thought to myself, Jesus Christ, won't these guys ever learn?"

"But getting back to that hospital. I went back to my bunk. Peggy helped me get my arm settled, and we talked a little bit. She was a smart girl. Having been with the Regular Army, she knew real soldiers when she saw them, and you didn't have to talk long with these poor brave kids who were so green they forgot their shoes to know what the score was. Here we were, trying to hold off the Japs with less than two thousand regulars, plus these green kids who had really been sent here to polish off their training, plus thousands of Filipino boys just as brave but just as green, most of whom had never been in uniform until a few weeks before the war started. All of them up against seasoned, well-equipped fighters."

"We should have known the score then, but we didn't want to believe it. Because I was the only naval officer there, they kept riding me about the fleet."

"Where in hell's the navy?" they'd ask me. "Why aren't they bringing us tanks and planes and more men? It only takes two weeks to get here from Pearl Harbor. Of course some of them knew what had happened at Pearl Harbor."

"They'll be along," I'd say. "Any day now."

"Hell," they'd say disgustedly. "We won't see them for six months."

"Suppose we don't," I'd say. "This place can last six months. Wasn't it built like Malta and Gibraltar—to withstand a siege?"

"Only pretty quick I began to find out how wrong I was. Corregidor had been built years ago, and then we'd agreed not to modernize if the Japs didn't modernize the lines. We kept the agreement; they didn't. Anyway, ammunition and provisions were so short the Rock would be doing good to hold out three months."

"A few days after that the nurses in my ward were buzzing around—I heard some talk about a party they were giving in their quarters that evening, inviting their boy friends, who for the most part were young army officers stationed on the Rock. And I almost fell out of my cot that afternoon when Peggy, in a seemingly offhand way, asked me if I'd like to go. It was nice, of course, to be chosen by the girl I liked best, out of 10,000 other men on that Rock, most of whom would have given an ear just to talk to a white girl. But it got me to thinking, too. I liked her, but the young girls had said there was a young medical officer she'd been dating pretty steadily—and what the hell was I? A naval officer in an army hospital—here today, gone tomorrow—so I hadn't let myself get started thinking—or tried not to, anyway."

"Sure enough, in about an hour they came back for another look."

"Naturally, I said sure I wanted to go. So Peggy said she'd see if she could fix it with the doctor. And after she got the word from him, he was certain it would be the good, if I was back in the ward by ten."

"Here in Newport I made you wouldn't think it was a party of a party. But it was a swell night, with a big moon hanging over Manila Bay—peaceful—and best of all the girls had broken out with their civilian dresses. That doesn't sound like much, but one look at them after seeing nothing but uniforms for months was like a trip back home. Makeup too—they looked so darned nice you could eat them with a spoon, and Peggy had put just a touch of perfume in her hair—anyway it wasn't that, it was something. What did we do? We danced to a portable—I'll bet we played,

"Rose of San Antonio" a dozen times—and Peggy and I figured out a way we could dance with my arm in a sling. And afterward we sat out on the grass and talked. I remember somebody saying, 'You think they'll ever bomb this place?' Of course we knew eventually they would, but that night the war seemed a thousand miles away. Only somebody spoiled it all by asking Peggy when this medical officer was getting back from Bataan, and she said she thought tomorrow."

"Next day I was out in the courtyard getting some fresh air," Lieutenant Kelly, who was invalided in the tunnel hospital at Corregidor continued: "I was allowed a certain number of hours per day out of my bunk—when the air-raid alarm went off, but by now we didn't pay any attention. I looked up to notice that nine Jap planes were going overhead, but what the hell, they did that all the time, and of course the anti-aircraft opened up—just a formally, because they were up out of range—when all of a sudden—Bam! the whole Rock seemed to jump, and we made a dive for the tunnel, because at last they were bombing us."

"It was quite a pasting. Half an hour later a batch of nurses came in in an ambulance—pretty well shaken up. They'd been strafed—had to leave the ambulance and run for the roadside ditches. A few minutes later the wounded began to come in—all the serious cases went into my ward. They had only two operating tables, so the litters were lined up, waiting their turn, while the nurses pitched in and took care of the minor surgery—cleaning wounds, digging for shrapnel, bandaging. There was no time for anesthetics except a quarter of a grain of morphine, but the wounded certainly had guts. They'd grab the side of their litter with clenched fists, and tell the nurses to go to it—it really wasn't hurting much."

"The raid had been going an hour when all of a sudden the lights went out, but in half a minute the girls had produced flashlights. I remember Peggy standing there holding a flashlight on a guy's naked back on the operating table while a doctor probed for some shrapnel in his kidney. You could see her face and these steady blue-green eyes of hers by the light reflected back up from this guy's back, and just then there was a terrific crunching bang—a bomb had landed right outside the tunnel entrance—and with it a sudden blast of air through the tunnel. It wasn't nice, and yet I don't think Peggy's hand even wobbled."

"Presently the lights came on, and we found one hospital corps man had crawled under a bed. He wasn't even sheepish. 'You're damn right I was scared,' he said. 'Thought the whole place was coming down on us.' Peggy's flashlight beam on that naked back had not moved. Hell of a fine, nervy girl to have in a war. Or any other time."

"But it was getting on toward New Year's, and had news began to come from Manila. The Japs were closing in."

"But very few of them realized it in Manila," said Akers. "I was there with my boat on courier duty from December 13 until Manila fell. Staying with Admiral Hart until the seaplane took him out to join the Dutch East Indies fleet."

"You certainly couldn't criticize morale. The average Filipino had a childish belief in us. He was absolutely certain that the Americans would be there next week with plenty of equipment. Dead-sure that our American soldiers would throw back the Japanese. Believed all the optimistic broadcasts and rumors."

"When a raid would come, of course, they were pretty excitable. We slept aboard the boat, and when the bombs started down, we were supposed to get away from the wharf and out into the bay. Sometimes people used to stow away, to get away from the bombs."

"They never lost faith, though. Right up to the end there were big dances at the Manila Hotel, and you could watch the Filipino boys in uniform, telling their girls about their 'heroic exploits. And there were plenty of them to tell, too."

"But over at the American Army and Navy Club, they knew what the score was. They didn't feel like dancing there. Their faces were plenty long."

"Of course the higher-up Filipinos knew the truth. If you'd see one with a long face, you could be sure he was a Senator, or better."

"I had a girl there—Dolores was her first name, and by American standards she was good-looking as hell. Her father was a Spaniard from Catalonia and her mother was a mestiza. She'd been elected Miss Philippines a year or so before. Fairly tall and lithe, with big black eyes and enough of the Oriental so you'd never forget her face among the other brunettes on the island."

"Her father I think was a Senator, and the family had a hell of a lot of money. His brother owned a lot of mines. They had a big colonial house in the suburbs. Usually when I was invited out she'd send a car down for me, but the first time I was coming out alone she said never mind about directions—and so it turned out. Every traffic cop I met knew just who they were and could point me on my way. So they were really big shots on the island."

"Her father knew what the score was, although Dolores didn't dream it was coming so soon. The last time I saw her, just before the Japs came in, she knew Manila had been declared an open city, but she thought that only meant there wouldn't be any more bombs. All that night the southern army had been moving through Manila, trying to get to Bataan before they were cut off, but she didn't know what the marching meant. That night her uncle, a tough old Spaniard who had mimes all over the world, got pretty drunk and almost had a row with her father, the Senator."

"The uncle said the whole mess was the fault of this opposition faction of Filipino politicians hollering their silly heads off for independence—no wonder the Americans, if they were getting out in four more years, hadn't socked a lot of money into fortifications. Then he cursed the Filipino politicians out for not appropriating money for the army—they'd set MacArthur up with a big salary and a penthouse, and then hardly given him a dime to train and equip an army—it was all window-dressing."

"He said he wasn't so worried about himself because he owned plenty of property outside the islands. But he told the Senator he'd probably end up pulling a rickshaw for his part in this independence foolishness, and serve him damned well right. So I could see there were a few natives who knew what the score was."

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

The majority of folks are honest. It is not dishonesty amongst the great majority of us, it is gullibility that is our problem. We have not been brought up on enough Aesop. Otherwise we would not be taken in by everybody coming along with some new rosy idea like "security for evermore." Security clear up to the mortician, including the coffin. To just sit down and wait—all expenses paid—would surely make us a cobwebby outfit.

We have laws against the gent with the 3 shells and one pen. We need a law putting a jail term on the flowery ducks in the striped pants who try to put over catchy slogans like this, "Freedom from care and everything—and never a worry or effort."

About the time we could get nicely settled, and basking under "security henceforth," and our muscles have become flabby, along would come some unruly Foreign Highwayman Naffin and slap us down and out the window would go security, lock, stock and barrel. Meat of us half-way savvy that perpetual motion is a fake, and we don't buy perpetual motion stock anymore very often but that don't keep us from being a sucker for something newer, if it sounds rosy and grand—and no sweat. We are demons for shell games.

Yours, with the low down,
JO SERRA

The Extension Service has been asked to advise wool growers against mixing "off" wools with regular wools in preparation for marketing. "Off" wools should be bagged separately to avoid the one percent discount which will be made against entire lots of wool where this procedure has not been followed. "Off" grades of wool when separated, are valued on their merits. Such wools include tags, crutchings, dead, black, fine, dark, heavy burry, eye clippings, and other damaged wools.

News from Home Means Much to Those in Their Country's Service

During the past two years the CITIZEN has gone each week to many of the boys in the Armed Services, including a large number now serving overseas. Numerous letters of appreciation from training points at home as well as in nearly every battle area convince us that the home newspaper is more than ever a regular home letter.

The rate for subscriptions to service folks is only $1.00 a year, half the usual rate, and no subscriptions are accepted for less than one year, payable in advance. Addresses will be changed as often as necessary and subscribers or donors are expected to notify of changes promptly.

Orders for overseas subscriptions must be approved by commanding officer. Overseas delivery is slower than letter mail, but usually is very good. Subscriptions of those receiving discharge from the services will be continued to civilian address for one-half the balance of the subscription term.

Remember—$1.00 will deliver this newspaper a year to any person serving in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps.

Fight the Forgery Racket!

BY FRANK J. WILSON
Chief, United States Secret Service

HERE we have in brief form the recommendations of the United States Secret Service to aid in fighting the forgery racket:

If you receive checks from the government:

1. Put a good lock on your mail box. Have your name printed clearly on the box.
2. Be at home, or have some member of the family at home, when government checks are due to be delivered.
3. Do not endorse your check until you are in the presence of the person you will ask to cash it.

If you cash government checks for customers:

1. Before you accept any government check, ask yourself this question: "If this check is returned because of a forged endorsement, can I locate the forger and recover my loss?"
2. When strangers ask you to cash government checks, insist that they properly identify themselves as rightful owners of the checks.
3. Insist that all government checks be endorsed in your presence, even if they have already been endorsed when presented.
4. Have checks initialed by the person who pays out money for them. Try to write on the check a brief description of the person presenting it.
5. Know your endorsers!

Governments' Philosophy Set Forth in New Fantasy

Antoine de Saint-Exupery's Delightful Fairy Story, "The Little Prince," Holds More Than Artistry for Adult and Child Alike.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D. C.

On a June day, when a gentle breeze brought the scent of new-mown grass in through the White House windows, President Roosevelt sat at his desk and read slowly to a group of correspondents from a typewritten sheet. It wasn't a formal document but it was an historic one—its purpose was to remind the Italian people that the military campaign against them which had just scored another Allied victory, Pantelleria, was the result of the misconduct of their rulers.

The message has been variously interpreted since, but to me, it contained one significant point—the reminder of the coming birth of a new nation: the new Italy which will emerge when the chains of arrogance and brute aggression which bind her are broken. There has been much talk about post-war policing of the re-made world; little thought of the philosophy which will underlie the forms which the reborn governments must follow. To me, such a philosophy is set forth in a work of pure fantasy. A hopeful note for nations and men is sounded in this delightful fairy tale by an author who found spiritual rebirth in the tragedy of the fall of his own nation.

I refer to Antoine de Saint-Exupery and his latest work, "The Little Prince."

Those who have read his "Night Flight," "Wind, Sand and Stars" and "Flight to Arras" are not surprised that he could create a fairy tale as delicate as this. Reviewers have disagreed as to whether it is for children or for adults. I believe it is for both, like "Alice in Wonderland." But the adult will find in "The Little Prince" something more than artistry and the children will sense that, too, I think.

Saint-Exupery is a brilliant aviator who built up night flying for the French airlines in South America. He fought against the Germans—"Flight to Arras" is the remarkable book which tells of that experience. He is now back with the French army in Africa, scene of the opening of "The Little Prince."

The Prince's Story

"Six years ago," the author says, "I made a forced landing in the Sahara alone, a thousand miles from help, and faced the necessity of repairing my motor by myself within the number of days my drinking water would last. The first morning, I was awakened by a determined but gentle voice which said: 'If you please, draw me a sheep.'"

So Exupery learned the story of how the Little Prince had found out what is really important in life.

The Little Prince is at once a delicate wisp of fancy, something so sheer that at moments he seems to float like a piece of thistledown before your imagination—again, he has all the reality of truth itself, he is eternal childhood, all that is gentle, and confiding and lovable, with the faint shadow of sorrow on his winsome face. He is the tug at your heartstrings that comes when youth looks at you in wide-eyed confidence, reaches up to take your hand—the same reminiscent tug when you look back and see the surprised and longing sorrow in the eyes of your own lost youth.

The Little Prince lived far away, it seems, on a tiny planet with three volcanoes so small that he cooked his breakfast on one of them. A flower came to his planet and the Little Prince loved her and cared for her but he couldn't understand her and so he left to try to find out why. He finally reached the earth, and here the fox taught him.

The Little Prince had never seen a fox—"Come and play with me," he said, "I am so unhappy." "I cannot play with you," the fox said, "I am not tamed." The Little Prince did not understand. He told the fox that he was looking for friends and asked him what tame meant.

Philosophy of a Fox

"It is an act too often neglected," said the fox, "it means to establish ties . . . to me, you are still nothing but a little boy who is just like a hundred other little boys. And I have no need of you. To you, I am nothing more than a fox like a hundred thousand other little foxes. But if you tame me, then we shall need each other. To me, you will be unique in the whole world. To you, I shall be unique in the whole world."

"I am beginning to understand," said the Little Prince, "there is a flower . . . I think she has tamed me."

"If you tame me," the fox went on, "it will be as if the sun came to shine on my life. I shall know the sound of a step that will be different from all others. Other steps send me hurrying back underneath the ground. Yours will call me like music out of my burrow. And then look: you see the grain fields down yonder. I do not eat bread. Wheat is of no use to me. The grain fields say nothing to me and that is sad. But you have hair that is the color of gold. Think how wonderful that will be when you have tamed me."

Peal That Will Be Heard Around the World

The grain which is also golden will bring me back the thought of you."

The fox gazed at the Little Prince for a long time. "Please—tame me," he said. "I want to very much," said the Little Prince, "but I haven't much time, I have friends to discover and a great many things to understand."

"One only understands the things one tames," said the fox, "men have no more time to understand anything. They buy things already made at the shops but there is no shop anywhere where one can buy friendship, and so men have no friends any more. If you want a friend, tame me . . ."

And so the Little Prince did, and another day when he came back, the fox said: "It would have been better if you had come back at the same hour. If, for example, you come at four o'clock in the afternoon, then at three o'clock I shall begin to be happy. I shall feel happier and happier as the hour advances. At four o'clock, I shall already be worrying and jumping about. I shall show you how happy I am. But if you come just anytime, I shall never know at what hour my heart is to be ready to greet you."

But finally, the Little Prince had to go.

"Ah," said the fox, "I shall cry."

Source of Comfort

"It is your own fault," said the Little Prince, "I never wished you any sort of harm; but you wanted me to tame you." "Yes, that is so," said the fox. "Then it has done you no good at all." "It has done me good," said the fox, "because of the color of the wheat fields."

And there, I think, perhaps some of you may find comfort—in the memories that come from the wheat fields, for the common and the beautiful things that remind you of someone from whom, perhaps this war has parted you.

That is only a flash I have given you of the story of "The Little Prince" which is not written for children only but for those who have the faith of little children and the understanding to see how tragedy can bring forth something which can light the long shadows which it leaves—out of the tragedy of his nation and the searchings of his own soul came this charming fantasy from the pen of the soldier-writer with the secret he learned from the Little Prince who learned it from the fox—

"It is only with the heart that one can see rightly; what is essential is invisible to the eye."

Kidneys Must Work Well—

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging back-aches, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Ducks Grounded, Millions Die; Beavers to Rescue

Wild ducks are temporarily "grounded" in late summer of each year, usually in August. At this turn of the season the young have not yet learned to use their wings and, in molting, the mature birds have lost their propelling wing feathers.

Some years millions of ducks die during this period when nesting grounds suffer drouth and birds are stranded away from water. Beavers often come to the rescue . . . save thousands of ducks by damming up outlets to lakes or streams.

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are. —Adv.

Bus Holds 260 People

The world's largest bus, recently designed and built for transporting soldiers between the gate and the barracks of vast Camp Carson near Colorado Springs, can carry 260 persons, a load capacity equivalent to that of 52 five-passenger motorcars.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT

A chain of rest stations is rising across northern Brazil along the route of workers trekking into the Amazon Basin gateway of Belém to increase collection of wild rubber. They provide medical aid and other human comforts to the 50,000 additional workers being recruited for the Amazon rubber forces.

The rubber normally used in one month's manufacture of baby pants can make 2800 rubber lifeboats for ocean-going planes.

A check of 7,200 farm-owned trucks showed that only 25 per cent of the tires on them were good; 54 per cent were fair; and 21 per cent were in poor condition.

Star Dust
STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

A LARGE detail of American soldiers stationed now at Accra, on the Gold Coast of West Africa, sat through a driving rainfall to see one of the "global" premieres of "Stage Door Canteen." Lt. Col. Flynn L. Andrew, who returned recently from an extended tour of the fighting fronts, reported on it. This was one of simultaneous showings of the picture on 38 battle fronts. It took place in an open-air theater, and a sudden rainstorm dampened the audience considerably, but not their enthusiasm.

Frank Sinatra, who's achieved such spectacular success in a year, has signed with RKO Radio; his first picture will be "Higher and Higher," in which he will be co-starred with Michele Morgan. Meanwhile, he's doing fine with his new radio program—"The Frank Sinatra Show," 45 minutes a week of joy for fans who've made him "America's favorite male vocalist."

For eight years we've been hearing "Time . . . marches on!" but not seeing the speaker. In the March of Time's latest film, "Invasion," he'll appear on the screen in person; he's Westbrook Van Voorhis.

After signing Anita Louise to a long term contract, Columbia has given her a leading role in "Restless Lady," which will be a comedy thriller rather like "A Night to Remember." Evelyn Keyes, Edmund Lowe, Allyn Joslyn and John Hubbard head the cast.

Ginny Simms has stepped into the lead in the Metro musical, "Along Broadway," and Eleanor Powell, who had been mentioned for the role, steps out; she asked for a release from her contract, which had nine months more to run. According to the dancer, she wants to devote more time to army camp entertainment, which is wonderful news for the boys who'll benefit.

Arturo Toscanini's two July United States treasury department concerts—the 18th and the 25th—will be attended by army, navy, marine and coast guard enlisted men and officers. The men of the Maritime service will be guests at the September one.

ODDS AND ENDS Groucho Marx is being edged on by Chico and Harpo to join them in another film comedy; he says if he does it will be his third farewell screen appearance. . . . Opinion in the trade is that Jack Carson's new CBS series breaks all the established rules of comedy shows.

Colorful Woven Rags for Your Rugs
And Cushions Proves Sound Economy

MANY an American of pioneer background can remember when all the floors in the house except the parlor were covered with woven rag rugs and carpets. Today there is something about the vigor, simplicity and economy of these colorful old-time floor coverings that fits our mood. The local weaver with a rug loom is flourishing in many communities.

The modern weaver has an assortment of colors in warp and filler that may be used with the rags that you have prepared in the manner shown here. About one and three quarter pounds of sewn rags will be required for a square yard of carpet. Rugs may be either cotton or wool but do not use both in the same rug. The rags should be soft and clean and hems or uneven finishes should be removed. Dye white rags the colors you wish to predominate.

NOTE—It is possible to make a great variety of floor coverings from odds and ends of things on hand. Books 9 and 10 of the series offered with these articles contain fascinating new designs for hooked and braided rugs. In Book 7 there is a rug made from old felt hats and school pennants.
